BROOKLYN'S BAD PLIGHT.

ON THE VERGE OF A WATER FAMINE.

ENOTHER EXAMPLE OF OFFICIAL MISMANAGE. MENT-THE RIDGEWOOD RESERVE DRAWN UPON-A PARTIAL SUPPLY THROUGH

THE MILBURY MAIN. That the city is on the verre of a water famine was made evident by the relations admissions of the city authorities yesterday. One manufacturing estab-lishment, at No. 471 Eight enthet, had to shut down for want of water with War's Commissioner Adams and yesterday: "The city has been hanging by the cyclids for years in the matter of its water supply. It took years of an tation to get authority for the new extension, and ne work of equal magnitude was ever pushed to completion in se short a time. If we did ot have it now we would be in a bad way. I do not think that anybody has been sensorsly inconvenienced by the break in the Milburn force main except the residents in the next elevated parts of the city empty condition of the Ridg wood reservoir reduced the pressure, and so there was no water at some of the hydrants in the Greenwood region for the fire Monday. We have not earned conscholders to be careful in the use of satur, los our experience last year showed the opposite results from what we expeople fill up all available rec ptacles and thus greatly diminish the supply.

The management of the water works is only an other Illustration of the scandalous conduct of public ffairs by the Democratic administration. As ogo as when Mayor Whitney was in office, the City Works Commissioner, on the report of the engineers of the department, and in view of the enormously rapid growth of the city, applied to the Aldermen for funds to provide new reservoirs, mains, wells and For years the effort had to be maintained, until finally the requisite appropriations were made, and the work of building a new distributing reservoir at Ridgewood, the construction of a new conduit par allel to the old one, the building of a new storage reservoir at Milburn, and the water extension beyond that point to Rockville Centre were secured. Before was completed the break in the old conduit, a year ago last November, gave the city the first direct intimation of danger. At that time it was said that if a proper reserve had been kept the Ridgewood reservoirs there would have been no difficulty. The capacity of the reservoirs has been increased one-third since that time, but owing to lack of pumping includes, and, it is alleged, the leaky condition of the new reservoir. It has been impossible

Last spring the City Works Department asked for an appropriation of $600,000 to put in additional new pumps and repair the old ones, but it was not until last week that the Aldermen acted in the matter.

Meanwhile, by the disabling of one of the pumping engines the reserve supply was practically exhausted.

Just as a reserve had again began to accumulate in the reservoir the extremely cold weather of the last week increased the consumption to the maximum, and then on Friday a break occurred in the main by which 25,000,000 gallons a day were being secured from the extension beyond Milburn. Yesterday all the available reserve supply was drawn from the Ridgewood res-, but the broken main had been repaired so that 10,000,000 gailons a day are secured through it, and the quantity pumped into the reservoirs equalled that drawn out, 81,000,000 gallons. If no other accident occurs and the weather moderates, the danger will be tided over, and the reserve supply can soon be restored. By the additional engines to be put in it will be possible to pump 120,000,000 gailous a day, and the reservoirs at inagewood can be kept full at all times. Meanwhile the waste of water is deprecated by the city materities.

and the reservoirs at mage-acout can be kept full at all times. Meanwhile the waste of water is deprecated by the city unifortities.

The question of the future water supply of the city is engaging attention. Unif Engineer Van Buren, of the City Works Department, is engaged in examining the possible sources of supply on Long Island. He says the city is perfectly safe in depending upon it for ten or fifteen years to came, unless the growth of population is unprecedentedly large, and what will have to be done after that time will be determined by the investigation now going on. In a few years the extension of the water system of the city will reach Lake Massapequa, an immense natural reservoir, supplied from some und tground squire, and there, it is believed, a practically inexhaustible supply will be secured.

Many frozen indrants were found in different parts of the city vesterday. secured. frozen fedrants were found in different parts

AN OLD MYSTERY NEARLY SOLVED. The mystery surrounding the disappearance of twelve year-old Magale Koebulim from her home No. 134 Metropolitan ave., six years ago, is now in a fair way of being solved. The girl is said to be in the Eastern District, flying with her husband. Her disappearence caused a sensation, and despite the efforts of the police to learn something of clew could be found that would in any way clear up the mystery. On the night of February 26, 1867, the girl's parents sent her to a bakery two block sway for brend. Margle made her purchases, but bread and basket were found beneath the step leading to the main entrance of the Graham Chemical Pottery Works, between her home and the bakery Suspicions were aroused that the girl had been mar dered and thrown into Newtown Creek. The creek was dragged, but nothing of the body could be found The next theory advanced was that the girl had bee diled by some of the employes of the pottery and the body thrown into the kilns and burned. An exami nation was made of the ashes, but there was no evi ence of the girl's body, since then her mother tence of the girl's body. Since then her mother has vainly searched for her. Yesterday she heard that after almost six years. Maggle had been seen in the neighborhood, and yet relived to go near her mother's home. On Friday hist Louis Gluiz, who lives in Catherinesst, near Grand-st, says he met her and she spoke to min. According to Gintz She said she was married and happy. George C., Edmund and Arthur Bedell had entered the rooms of "The Advocate" and removed $500 worth of attached property, could not substantiate his allegations positively in the Harlem Police Court yesterday, and admitted that he had based his complaint upon information rather than personal knowledge. Frank Clark, formerly a pro-frender in the office, testified that at the time of the alleged burglary, the doors of the office were standing wide open. The lawyers who appeared for the de-fence moved the dismissal of the case through lick of convicting evidence. Justice Eurke discharged Arthur, but adjourned the hearing against the others to Tuesday next.

THE TUGBOAT DECLARED TO BE NEW An order was received from the Secretary of the Treasury at the Custom House yesterday which settles a dispute of several weeks' standing between two officers which led to considerable rather acrimon correspondence. On February 8, 1892, the tur-syracuse was burned in the harbor and almost totally destroyed. George M. Bockoven, of One-hun dred and thirtieth st. and the Harlem River, purchased the wreck for $150. He sold the old iron, damaged engines and everything else, except a few live-oak knees, which are practically indestructible. These he used in the construction of a new boat named the Corona. It was otherwise entirely new and cost about $5,000, all the builder had. Six weeks ago be applied to the Surveyor for a certificate of in spection of his new vessel. Samuel M. Blatchford, the acting Deputy Surveyor, refused to issue it on to ground that he knew no such new vessel, but that it was the old Syracuse. Surveyor Lyon sustained Bartlett said yesterday that the company hat no more him and an appeal was taken to the Collector, sight to put up signs on its platforms than a private Deputy Collector Gunner reported that the vessel was new and should be certified. A long correspondence followed, some of which is most interesting, and finally the Collector after reviewing the case as premaily the Collector after revening sented by both officers requested the surveyor to issue the certificate, but the latter stood by als deputy and refused to do so. Then the case was referred to the Treasury Department, which has sustained the Collector. Notwithstanding the old knees the tug is

The firm has branches in Denver and Omaha Lather E. Kountze being the only brother Bying in this city. Mr. and Mrs. Kountze had no children, but in 1861 they took Catherine Smith, Mrs. Kountze niece, then five years old, to five with them. Nine years ago Frank R. Smith, a nephew, also went to live with them.

Miss Smith was recently married, her name now being Mrs. Catherine Newhoff. Her name was not mentioned in the will, but it is believed by the helrs that Mr. Kountze meant that she should be providefor by his wife's will disposing of the $250,000, and that Mrs. Kountze's "heirs and legal representatives" are those to whom she shall will the property. The suit now pending is a friendly one, it being desired that this construction be put upon the will if possible. Mrs. Kountze, Herman Kountze and Aaron T. Smith, a lawyer by profession, but now a clerk in a railroad a lawyer by profession, but how a cierk in a raintend office, who was a friend of Mr. Kountze, and who drew the will, testified as to Mr. Kountze's friendly feeling for his niece, and as to his evident desire that she should be provined for. Mr. smith said that Missmith's name was mentioned when the glaine in question was written. Judge bugen took the papers and said that he should construct he will as desired if possible.
